I. Introduction

I think that the best place to begin any writing is with an introduction. However, due to the circumstances surrounding my personal experiences, some of which I will discuss in this work, although in limited detail, I am certain that it is without a doubt in both my and my loved ones' best interests to keep some information strictly confidential. This includes what would traditionally entail much of the introductory section of any book, such as general background, educational achievements, and work experience.

I would however like to briefly summarize my background- I come from a working class family in the rural south, I was raised and remain a devoted Christian (non-denominational), and I am an educated man, not that the latter is particularly of any import, especially as this relates to the content or goal of this work.

That goal is simple - to help other people who may be struggling with similar experiences I have had, or who may otherwise feel entirely alone (which is likely intentional isolation - more on this later), and to provide not only consolation, but also some steps that may provide relief.

Those experiences include what may be best described as close encounters of the third kind and various curses, whether the culprit or contributor of those encounters or curses be unknown / intentionally unidentified organizations within the government, private government contractors, within gangs, “extra terrestrials” that is - rulers/powers and authorities (supernatural), occultists, secret societies, or some combination of all of these, invariably.

Please know, if you can already relate to anything I have written, you are not alone, someone cares and help is available. Again, I sincerely hope to offer that here.

I.I Experiences
- UAPs, Fallen Angels and Sons of the Fallen -
A Litany of Close Encounters of the Third Kind

I think it best if I begin here by making it clear where my allegiance lies, in the event that this wasn't clear from the introduction, I am a Christian. I always have been (although I had admittedly strayed from the path for some time). In fact, I don't remember ever not knowing who God and Jesus were, and I have always had a memory of being in heaven for as long as I can remember.

I make no apologies for my faith, although I do strive to be respectful of other's beliefs and do not have ill regard toward anyone, regardless of this (I understand many have turned away from Christianity due to feeling targeted).

However, I especially make no apologies for my faith now, as I am certain, beyond any doubt, that God (He is indeed real) is unequivocally the only reason that I am still alive and am in the position to be able to author this book, being one who has endured a curse of being a "Son of the Fallen" (which has since been removed, by the grace of God).

On to my personal experiences concerning close encounters of the third kind, there have been so many over the years, and especially over the last year and several months, that I couldn't list them all. I will list some of the more salient encounters, if you will, below:

I. Approximately 2018, a green UAP fell from the sky over an undisclosed location in the Appalachian mountains. Witnessed by myself and another individual. (This occurred during a time that I had been watching Ragnarok, the Norwegian series (we must always be careful of what we watch and listen to, but I'll add much more on this later).

II. In 2017, a massive fireball type UAP appeared in the Eastern sky, consisting of many colors and lasted several minutes, while I was in FL. This was also witnessed by another individual. I have video footage of this encounter.

III. Approximately summer of 2016, I and another individual witnessed a red triangle shaped UAP, with three lights in Arizona, it made no sound (none of the UAPs I experienced made any sound).

IV. In 2025, the day after a triple convergence, while in AZ, I witnessed a white UAP travelling at a high rate of speed, with what looked to be a circular entity situated inside of it (I compared this to the traditional understanding of a throne / angelic or supernatural being). I have video footage of this entity as well.

V. In early 2025, I had an entity enter my bedroom. I recall a white visage and I vaguely recollect it withdrawing semen (I think this to be a Nord or the Nordic type of entity which I will cover in a later section). This remains a very blurry experience.

VI. Approximately Halloween of 2024, I awoke to a demonic guttural voice whispering into my right ear in a language that I did not recognize. This occurred only within a day or so of my dog barking erratically in my bedroom while alone, I entered the room and found him looking into a mirror. (I will cover how mirrors are used as weapons and how to stop them from being used later on.)

VII. Approximately October of 2025 I had another dream of a fanged female entity engaging in sexual acts with me (succubus entity). I have had dreams of this sort occur on several occasions.

VIII. I was briefly brought into Hades, or Sheol, in April of 2025, and was surrounded by other people who were laying in beds and appeared to be drug addicts. An entity in a white coat with glowing green eyes stood in front of me when my spirit came down and I said "Jesus already won the battle". I think that this was the third circle of Hades based on what I have read concerning gluttony (I was addicted to kratom at the time but no other substances). After saying that Jesus had already won the battle, I felt the entity's hand on my right arm and I was immediately transported back up and into my body.

IX. I will omit the seemingly endless encounters with various fallen angels and demons, and rulers, but suffice it to say that many of them know who I am, and I know them (this is not anything I am fond of).

In addition to the above, I have also experienced a multitude of other encounters while in my home, usually at night while sleeping. These encounters often include humming noises, seeing various shapes while my eyes have been closed whilst trying to fall asleep, moving through walls, and other phenomena, such as a persistent ringing in my ears, (the latter of which I am aware has affected many people).

II. Curses
- How to Identify Curses and their Place of Origin -

Odds are, if you have ventured into purchasing this book, then you already know what a curse is, or at least have a good idea, and need no Biblical or external sources to substantiate their existence. This is likely because you have already suffered as a result of such a curse.

However, for the sake of clarity, I will include Biblical sources as evidence for their existence below.

Examples include:

a. when Jesus cursed the fig tree,
b. a death sentence being imposed on those who cursed their mother or father,
c. an undeserved curse, which is specifically described as not coming to rest (Proverbs 26:2), d. Curses placed upon those who are hung on a pole (Galatians 3:13 and Deuteronomy 21:23) (Jesus became a curse for us so that we as believers are not bound by the law),

e. a command to bless those who curse you and to pray for those who mistreat you (Luke 6:28),
f. the ground becoming cursed because of Adam's eating of the fruit of the tree of knowledge, and
g. Cain's curse, where the ground would not receive him, after murdering Abel.

Many other examples remain, which I will not cover here, as I believe that the point has been driven home adequately.

In the event that an argument might be made that the curses mentioned above are not the same as the type of curses I am referencing within this book, (with specific intent to harm the recipient), I would like to point out that in the example I provided from Luke 6:28, mistreating someone and cursing them are explicitly separate. This is of course why Luke is giving specific instructions as to handle each of these instances separately.

Lastly, additional examples of curses exist throughout other ancient writings, such as the Egyptian Book of the Dead, the curses placed upon Egyptian tombs, the Tabellae Defixionums (Greco-Roman Lead Curse Tablets), the Curse of Sekhmet, the Curse of Ra, among a host of others.

II.I How to Know if You Have Been Cursed

The list below are all great indicators that you are in fact suffering from some type of curse (note that only one or two these may be indicators that you are being experimented on by a shadow organization (or gang), to see how you respond to certain media. However, many of these being present are without question signs that you are suffering from a curse.

a. Excessive fear and feelings of panic,
b. foul odors (especially sulfur),
c. visitations during the night by UAPs,
d. cold spots,
e. night-terrors,
f. gang-stalking (by this I mean often unmarked black vehicles that are repeatedly seen - also numbering and lettering on license plates that stand out or seem to create a pattern with words and symbols),

g. unexplained loss of a job,
h. inability to find work,
i. mystery illnesses,
j. death(s) or sickness in the family,
k. vehicle issues,
l. repeated negative thoughts (including to harm others or yourself or feeling isolated),
m. random reels or videos appearing on social media incorporating the use of the terms “chosen ones” or “star seeds” (although this can and does vary depending upon the person),
n. an incessant desire to check your phone (this however can also be related to programming and experiments related to such programming),
o. exploding food and drinks,
p. unexplained phone calls,

q. phantom noises throughout the home or workplace,
r. hearing messages or voices through the tv or radio (this can, again, be a result of experimentation and programming as well),
s. ringing in the ears that will not go away.

(this list is not exclusive, there are other similar such phenomena).

Next we will look at how to identify curses placed on a recipient by an occultist, as well as how to identify curses which are generational in nature, and may either correlate to a genetic or blood related type curse, (or a curse passed down due to an ancestor belonging to a secret society in which hexes or bindings are placed upon the initiate). The latter are often invited onto the recipient willingly as these are ceremonial in nature, as part of a secret society's induction or graduation rituals and the recipient is unaware of what they are placing onto themselves in these situations.

II.IA Curses From Occultists (including those who work for some elite parties, for or within gangs, and shadow organizations (government and private)

Curses from occultists may look different depending upon the type of curse involved and the occultist placing the curse. Some very telling signs to look for (I am not saying to interpret omens here, if in doubt, pray first), are included below:

a. Exploding liquids that would seem otherwise unexplained (this can be soda cans or bottles, or even food containers and condiments) - If a liquid or food item explodes, I think it likely goes without saying to avoid consuming the item entirely, immediately clean the area, then cleanse and bless the area.
b. Strange phone calls being received with no party on the other line, particularly during the 3:00 am hour,

c. Finding dead birds, other dead animals, or animal bones on your property or near it. (Once more, prayer is key here, and while I do not suggest taking it upon yourself to return a curse to the person who sent it, (I think this likely would qualify as engaging in witchcraft and goes against Biblical instruction, also, God can do this far better than any of us could imagine and without our help). Alas, I do suggest burying the animal or bones, along with some salt, at the least.

II.IB Generational Curses (Sons of the Fallen and Secret Societies)

Generational curses are also very much real, and can easily be substantiated in both Biblical and external historical sources.

The excerpt below is taken from Kings and provides inarguable Biblical evidence for generational curses-

1 Kings 2:32-46

“32 The LORD will repay him for the blood he shed, because without my father David knowing it he attacked two men and killed them with the sword. Both of them—Abner son of Ner, commander of Israel’s army, and Amasa son of Jether, commander of Judah’s army—were better men and more upright than he.
33 May the guilt of their blood rest on the head of Joab and his descendants forever. But on David and his descendants, his house and his throne, may there be the LORD's peace forever."

Identifying whether a curse arises from a generational source or membership in a secret society can be determined relatively easily. You can begin by asking yourself the following questions:

I. Have you had a genealogical DNA test performed? If so, it is possible someone (or an agency - I will not mention names here), has accessed your information and identified a potential curse on your bloodline, (what such an agency may define as non-human dna), placing you in some crosshairs you otherwise would not have been in.

If you have had this test performed, has anyone contacted you about ancestors in your family tree with surnames that might have questionable origins, which may otherwise seem suspicious? (for example - Stanley - which may mean "Standing Stones"). If so, this is a good indicator.

II. Have you ever heard a grandparent referred to by a name (this can even be a nickname), that may indicate a potential fallen angel, god or demonic entity? What about other relative's names?

III. Does an ancestor's tombstone have unusual engravings that may indicate membership in a potential secret society? I will not cover the engravings here, but a quick online search of such societies and their relevant symbolism can be easily located.

These are all indicators that a generational curse is either blood related (passed down via dna), or via membership in a secret society. I recommend immediately researching further and taking action.

Once you have identified that a curse is likely generational, the logical next step is to remove that curse if possible. This may look different, but generally, finding an associated item that can be tied to a curse and burying it, with the top facing East (position of the sunrise and also Jerusalem for those of us in the West), for 3-7 days. This will almost always break all such curses. Prayer before burying the item, and asking that the curse be removed by the act is absolutely essential.

An easy example here, may be a pentagram you have located in an ancestor's belongings that were passed down to you, and that ancestor's name was the same as a pagan deity's name, or otherwise indicative of a specific deity or entity.

Here, the pentagram should be buried with the top facing East, for 3-7 days and prayed over during burial. Considering what it was used for, throwing it away after would likely be a sound idea, to prevent future openings from potentially occurring.

II.II Protect Yourself - Rules to Live By to Prevent Curses, Hexes and Bindings

1. Legal Righting and Gift Giving

This is a very common and simple method employed by the enemy to place curses or bindings on people and even their pets.

ALWAYS (please trust that when I use all capital letters in a word in this book, it is for good reason), be very careful of who you accept any gift from, or give any gift to (this includes donations). By gift, I mean any item at all.

Likewise, be very wary of even purchasing second hand items. If you don't feel right about an item, but still want to purchase it from a second hand store, pray about it first and listen with your heart and cleanse and bless the item(s) before placing it into your vehicle.

This is because creating a contract is far easier than the unsuspecting person might imagine. Thus, where a contract is created, an opening is also present, or at least perceived to be present, by the nefarious powers at work in the world. This tiny opening is all those powers require in order to gain access to you, your home, and your loved ones, until you take action and close that opening.

Also, NEVER pick up anything off of the ground, regardless of what it is. If you are doing a good deed and picking up trash, use gloves and be sure to not bring anything you pick up into your home. (Coins are frequently left lying on the ground to entice the unsuspecting to pick them up - leave them where they are).

The concept of legal righting began long ago, but is most frequently found within the modern prison system and jails. Several variants of this exist currently, and have for quite some time.

Examples include the “Finders Club”, and similar organizations. (It should be noted that I am admittedly not very knowledgeable on the topic of the Finders Club, but I personally believe that the power / or ruler behind it are the same found within all related legal righting systems, both inside and outside the prison system; that power is Mephistopheles and his cohorts (I have written much more concerning him in a latter section, but he is directly correlated with contracts).

A bit more on legal righting, and historical evidence for its existence as well as its associated hazards can be gleaned from the following excerpt taken from the Dead Sea Scrolls:

"No member of the Covenant of God shall give or receive anything from the sons of Dawn (shahar) [or: of the Pit (shahat)] except for payment."

Translations for Shahar and Shahat are below:

a.) Shahar - Dawn, or morning.

"SHAHAR shā' här (שַׁחַר). The KJV rendering of שַׁחַר in the title of Psalm 22 (RSV DAWN). In Canaanite mythology Shahar and his twin brother Shalem were sons of El, the senior god of the Canaanite pantheon. Shahar was the god of dawn, and Shalem, the god of sunset. They were comparable to Castor and Pollux of classical mythology.

Bibliography C. H. Gordon, Ugaritic Literature (1949), 60-62; G. R. Driver, Canaanite Myths and Legends (1956), 22, 23, 123" (Shahar can also be translated as Venus - the Morning Star, or Lucifer, depending upon the translation, thus; Sons of Lucifer).

b.) Shahat - "shachath: To destroy, corrupt, ruin, spoil",

"batter, cast off, corrupter, thing, destroyer lose, mar, perish, spill,

A primitive root; to decay, i.e. (causatively) ruin (literally or figuratively) -- batter, cast off, corrupt(-er, thing), destroy(-er, -uction), lose, mar, perish, spill, spoiler, X utterly, waste(-r).”

(Also - to go to ruin, or the pit, thus; Sons of the Pit (likely a reference to Hades - Sheol)

2. ALWAYS look into a company or manufacturer before purchasing an item (particularly online, but this can also be true of some in store purchases as well).

   We so often purchase products online without giving their manufacturer or the company selling an item a second thought. By look into, I mean incorporating some basic investigative skills and determine the owner of a company, and where the company is located and use this information to acquire a general idea about the company.

Company names, logos (pay attention to the imagery used), street names, and sometimes even numbers are important. Also important are surnames (of the owners of a company) and the meaning of those surnames.

As the old saying goes, you can tell a great deal about a person by their surname, this remains very much true due to generational curses that may allow a person to be utilized as a vessel (often without their knowledge).

Again, if you question something, take the time and pray about it first (this includes what I am writing here - I am not exempting myself and I freely admit that I am by no means without defect. I am only including information that I have picked up from my personal experience).

3. Be VERY careful of who you share food or drinks with.

    Sharing food and drinks may seem harmless enough, however, this is unfortunately not the case.

    In certain pagan cultures, food sharing can be a rite within itself as part of an initiation via energy sharing (especially with certain foods like tomatoes and oranges).

    Once this is tapped into fast food, this can prove to be a travesty on a mass scale.

Because of this, it is recommended to prepare meals at home, or, at the very least, ALWAYS keep protection with you and pray over meals before enjoying them. (By pray over I mean ask that curses, hexes or bindings be made ineffective and give thanks - you must be specific).

4. Be careful of who you allow in your circle and who you shake hands with.

   Sadly, I have found that this can and does include blood relations. If you are ever unsure of someone, once more, pray about it and ask God for a sign.

   Some things to look for include the clothing they wear and its symbolism, how they conduct themselves, what they are fond of doing and potential motives for why they are fond of doing those things. As you will later see in this work, colors and numbers the person may be associated with are important. Tattoos can be very telling here.

Deceiving spirits abound, especially in today's world, where people are so often utilized as nothing more than tools by forces of darkness (and quite often without their knowing).

For example, if someone is a drug addict and is purchasing drugs from a drug dealer, there is an opening created, an opening is created and there is a very high likelihood that the opening is being fully utilized.

Here, in this scenario, it would be wise to not share a meal with this person (if you absolutely have to - protect yourself first), and be very cautious of anyone that they may try and introduce you to (shaking hands should be avoided at all costs, wherever possible).

These same principles should apply to relatives who practice dark arts, as it is very plausible that they have and are also being targeted (please note that I am in no way saying not to love these persons, whether they are family members or not, but instead to only put logical practices in place wherever possible to help keep yourself safe).

5. NEVER send money to anyone you do not know, and vet someone thoroughly first before sending, even if you do know them.

    This, of course, includes via social media. Common themes include people making scam posts concerning their pets, or stating that they are homeless and asking for money to be donated to them.

    However, once you send money to them, you have created an opening in your life and the lives of your loved ones. These entities actually rely on the good hearts of people in order to gain access to them.

    (Often even people asking for prayers via social media cannot be trusted, as technology is used to transfer energy (it has been for some time). If you do pray for them, don't comment or like the post. Instead, turn off your phone and mention their name at night during prayer.

If you notice odd occurrences after sending money to someone, (see the list for signs of curses), immediately block them and begin taking steps to cleanse, purify and bless the home, then ensure that no other openings are created.

6. IMMEDIATELY Employ Basic Protection

Some methods of basic protection include amulets (yes, early Christians and Jews sometimes carried them), prayer, crystals, incense, salt and herbs.

a. Amulets - Christians, Jews, Muslims, Hindus, Buddhists, Indigenous Tribes and various Pagan religions all have amulets to some degree, whether they are cognizant of it or not. Crosses, Stars of David, Italian Horns, Saint Amulets, Eyes of Horus, Crescents, Shiva, Indra and Ganesh pendants, Pentagrams and Thor's Hammers are all easy examples.

I am by no means stating here that any of the above are not effective, nor do I wish to insult anyone's beliefs in this work, yet, I do wish to share a personal experience.

I was laying in bed only recently during Sabbath and had two Hamsas placed on my temples which was immediately followed by flashes of light going off within my head (my eyes were closed, but I was fully awake and saw the Hamsas in detail). At the time, I did not know what these symbols were called, their meaning, history, or their uses.

I conducted some research the following day and found that they are utilized throughout the middle east, by Jews, Muslims and Eastern Christians alike, to ward off and to bind evil.

They come in many forms but those with a Star of David, crosses, as well as solar or celtic crosses present within them, I am personally am most fond of (I have seen both of the latter in my mind's eye, at random, on several occasions).

More design work, including specific colors, I believe, are similar to Native American dream catchers or medicine wheels, which also are utilized to ward off and to bind evil.

I have found through experience the Hamsa to be particularly powerful, yet, I also pray over them, facing East (again - toward Jerusalem), before use, and this is undoubtedly the true source of their protective power.

I place Hamsas, along with saint amulets over my doors, inside and outside of my home and vehicle, over my bed, as well as in front of mirrors after cleansing them.

Cleansing mirrors can be done by simply cleaning a mirror with the left hand and a towel, then utilizing the right hand to trace a protective sigil (such as a Star of David) on the glass with a blessed oil.

I have included an excerpt from myjewishlearning.com regarding the history of the Hamsa below.

However, whether you decide to utilize it or not, is ultimately up to you. I have also seen some beautiful Coptic, Byzantine, Greek and Ethiopian Orthodox Crosses.

Regardless, whatever you choose to wear as an amulet, I believe that prayer is paramount for it to be effective.

"It would not be unusual for an Islamic symbol to find its way into Sephardic Jewish culture, which flourished alongside Islam. However, amulets are somewhat problematic in Judaism because the Bible prohibits magic and divination. Still, the Talmud refers on several occasions to amulets, or kamiyot, which might come from the Hebrew meaning "to bind." One law allows for carrying an approved amulet on the Sabbath, which suggests that amulets were common amongst Jews at some points in history. (Shabbat 53a, 61a)

Art historian Walter Leo Hildburgh also raises the possibility that the hamsa has Christian roots, and might be influenced by the Christian artistic form where Mary often carries her hands in a"fig" pose, or a configuration where the thumb is tucked under the index finger beside the middle finger.

According to University of Chicago professor Ahmed Achrati, the hamsa did not necessarily arise in a religious context. The form of the open hand appears in Paleolithic caves in France, Spain, Argentina, and Australia, including one site in Algeria that earned the name The Cave of the Hands.

In Egyptian art, the human spirit (called ka) is represented by two arms reaching upward (forming a horseshoe shape), albeit with only two fingers on each hand. The symbol of the Phoenician lunar goddess Tanit resembles a woman raising her hands, and hands also found their way into tomb decorations. Etruscans painted hands with horns on their tombs, and some Jewish burial practices featured images of hands (suggesting the priestly blessing) on stone markers of Levite graves. All of these could be considered very early precursors to the hamsa."

b. Prayer - It has been my experience that when praying externally to ward off evil or to otherwise bless or cleanse an area, Hebrew and Latin have been more effective than English. However, I have had success with all three.

Verbally reciting Psalm 91 during or immediately after burning a cleansing incense has been particularly useful in blessing an area and removing negative or dark entities. (Yet, I should add here that avoiding creating openings by watching certain films, listening to questionable music or playing games that have been produced by a company who is bound to an enemy ruler must be avoided in order to prevent creating more openings. Otherwise, all efforts to cleanse and protect may prove futile).

I have included below a translation and transliteration of Psalm 91, taken from theisraelbible.com for easy reference:

c. Crystals - While I understand many Christian, Jewish and Muslims readers may be particularly hesitant to incorporate the use of crystals, I have found them to be effective in protection against demonic entities and harmful magic from occultists.

The way I feel about crystals is this: I am not placing my faith into a crystal, but rather in the God whom I know created the crystal and gave it the protective qualities it possesses; much the same as when a sick person goes to see a doctor, (and for the believer is likely praying in addition), yet it was God who permitted the physician to acquire the skill and knowledge that he or she possesses to treat and prevent illness.

Also, again prayer is key, both to determine whether you decide to utilize a tool I have listed here, and to bless that tool that you do wish to utilize to help protect you, your home and your loved ones.

There are only two crystals that I use:

I. Amethyst - To keep witchcraft from having an effect on the wearer.
II. Blue Sapphire - To protect the wearer from demonic influence.

The sources to support the use of each are included below from levysfinejewelry.com and azurajewelry.com :

“THE HISTORY OF AMETHYSTS AND THE GREEK GOD, DIONYSUS

Since the dawn of history, Amethysts have been viewed by many spiritual people as being an antidote to drunkenness. The name itself stems from the Greek word, “améthystos”, meaning “without intoxication”.

According to the Greek Philosopher, Aristotle, it was also the name of a beautiful, virgin nymph who in order to protect herself from the drunken enragement of the god, Dionysus, sought the aid of the Goddess Diana. According to legend, the Goddess saved her by converting her into a piece of clear quartz. In remorse for his actions, Dionysus poured wine over the clear stone, giving the amethyst its color and the quality of protecting its wearers from the effects of intoxication. Dionysus was the Greek god of wine and intoxication (known as Bacchus to the Romans).

AN EGYPTIAN HISTORY OF AMETHYSTS

The Egyptians are known for using amethysts as Talismans, often worn by soldiers, to offer success in their efforts and calmness during dangerous situations.

According to the Roman author, Pliny, the Magi believed that when an amethyst was engraved with the symbols of the sun and moon, it became a powerful charm against witchcraft. They also believed that the stone gave its wearers success, good luck, and favorability amongst authority figures.

HISTORY OF AMETHYSTS IN THE CHURCH

Due to its frequent use in Episcopalian jewelry, especially rings, the amethyst earned the nickname, “the Bishop’s Stone”. Amethyst rosaries were also common to reduce stress and influence a pious calmness on its wearers. According to religious art, it was depicted as a symbol of alleviating earthly suffering, patience in anguish, and trust that God will be those in death.

The stone was also known as the stone of St. Valentine, who is said to have always worn an amethyst ring carved with the image of Cupid. The stone is also the symbol of St. Matthias and the Guardian Angel Adnachiel.

Amethyst was also one of the twelve stones that adorned the breastplate of the high priest, Aaron, in the Old Testament (Exodus 39).

AMETHYSTS IN THE MIDDLE AGES

Amethysts were seen as having many mythical properties and uses during the Middle Ages. Many people believed that the stone was capable of detecting poisons by fading in color in its presence. Color changing in amethysts was also a sign of personal danger and ill-health.

Amethysts were also thought to bring out the greatest possible fortune and happiness for a couple when a bride offered an amethyst in the shape of a heart set in silver.

Alternatively, the stone was also believed to provide strength to businessmen and calmness for soldiers.

Leonardo Da Vinci was entranced by the properties of amethysts, believing the stones held the ability to quicken intelligence and protect against evil thoughts.

AMETHYSTS IN CHINESE CULTURE

In traditional Chinese culture, amethyst is prescribed for healing lung illness, stomach pains, and bad dreams. It has been said to have the power to completely cleanse the body, especially in the chest. They were also said to alleviate headaches and to make the patient think more clearly.

According to the ancient philosophy of Feng Shui, the amethyst enhances the wealth corner, focusing on the giving and receiving of material wealth."

"Sapphire has been the subject of many famous myths, from King Solomon and Abraham's preferred talisman to Christians using it in ecclesiastical rings to Hindus calling sapphire as one of the "great gems" and Buddhists believing it to be a stone of spiritual awakening and worship.

Sapphire saves you from the evil eye, protects you from black magic, envy, harmful attention, fraud, treason, negative energy, and any ill-happenings."

Further, both Amethyst and Sapphire were mentioned in Exodus as being among the 12 gemstones to adorn the breastplate of Aaron.

d. Incense, Salt and Herbs

Incense - Incense has been utilized for millennia for both purification and protection. Incense was and remains frequently burned in churches and synagogues and during exorcisms.

Frankincense is mentioned within the Bible as an ingredient for incense, but specific caution is given concerning the following blend's use, apart from that specifically provided. Please see the scripture below concerning this from Exodus.

Exodus 30:34-38

"Incense

34 Then the LORD said to Moses, "Take fragrant spices—gum resin, onycha and galbanum—and pure frankincense, all in equal amounts, 35 and make a fragrant blend of incense, the work of a perfumer. It is to be salted and pure and sacred. [36] Grind some of it to powder and place it in front of the ark of the covenant law in the tent of meeting, where I will meet with you. It shall be most holy to you. [37] Do not make any incense with this formula for yourselves; consider it holy to the LORD. [38] Whoever makes incense like it to enjoy its fragrance must be cut off from their people."

It is also worth mentioning that based upon this scripture, fragrant spices (apart from frankincense) were being utilized as incense, as well as salt, as a purifying agent.

Thus, salt is purifying. I personally use it at door entrances and scattered across an area, while saying a blessing to cleanse an area. I have found that this, coupled with tobacco, a plant long hailed by Indigenous tribes as countering malicious forces, scattered while facing East, to be particularly effective.

As to other herbs and spices, onion and garlic are also very powerful at removing unclean entities, due to their high acetone content. Here, the age-old multi-cultural tradition of placing onions on the bottom of a person's feet to draw out impurities come to mind.

I believe this age-old tradition to be completely self explanatory, as impurities can be defined as many things that are negative and affect the body in a negative way.

Likewise, herbal tonics containing garlic and onion are similarly useful, as well as the use of thyme, which has anti-parasitic properties. If you are familiar with herbs, spices and their uses, you will likely notice a trend with those I have listed in this section, as nearly all have anti-parasitic properties.

Others that are associated with heat, or the element fire (fire is also purifying and is likewise mentioned in the Bible for this purpose, along with a host of external sources), such as clove, chili and cinnamon, are very powerful for incense making and employed to drive away dark spirits (sometimes known as shades).

Another herb, Sage, has long been popular among various cultures for cleansing and use in incense. I have not used it personally, but I have read that it has been shown to remove harmful microbes from the air when burned in scientific studies and thus may also be considered.

Lemon, as part of a herbal tonic, or lemon powder, as part of an incense blend, is useful as well. Perhaps it is the d-limonene content, which it contains naturally, that makes this so.

An effective all purpose incense blend, if you will, (which can also be placed into an herbal tonic and blessed before use), is included below:

All in equal parts (except for the salt - a little goes a long way with salt - it only needs to be present to be effective):

Onion (and / or garlic - these can be substituted most often),

Lemon (substitute for lemon powder when used as part of an incense),

Salt,

Clove,

Chili,

Cinnamon.

*(combine these with vinegar, honey and olive oil for a healing and cleansing tonic. Be sure to drink plenty of water after. Fasting is also a great time tested tool for cleansing).

II.III Breaking Curses

When it comes to breaking curses, it all comes down to the simple items I have already mentioned above. Recall the purifying items and elements:

a. Fire,

b. Water (see Leviticus concerning water purification. There are also countless external sources such as ritual bathing, including with salt and herbs, etc. for cleansing), &

c. Salt.

Next will take some prayer (and listening for an answer) followed by some careful thinking.

However, generally, as we already covered in 2.1A and 2.1B, burial of an item associated with a curse may follow for a period of a minimum of 3 days, and applying salt during burial.

If the curse is derived from legal righting, or you suspect it is, think VERY carefully of any item you may have received as a “gift”, or picked up, then fire should be utilized, along with salt and potentially other herbs, invariably. However, salt and fire should be a minimum here. Be sure to gather ALL such items out of your home for burning, as soon as possible.

Before lighting, be sure to pray and ask God to provide the power required to remove a curse (or whatever deity you may pray to invariably. I am not writing this work to bring charges or condemnation against readers, but instead to help where possible).

I also face East before lighting, due to Jerusalem being a Holy City to me, or South for personal reasons. Also, be sure to NEVER leave any such items unattended until the fire has completely burned out. This is important, and not only to prevent the ignition of wild fires.

III. The Powers that Be - Fallen Angels, Demons, Angels and Hybrids

I will begin here by listing the principal powers at work in our world today. Some of these may surprise you, but everything I am stating is based upon my own experiences, personal knowledge, and research, and I believe it to be true.

As a reminder, it is my hope that this work, which I am offering at my own risk, may help someone not to be deceived, as many already have been.

Hydra - Hive. Also known as the Greek beast, (yes, that same one from the Bible - 666), (note that you should avoid using honey if you believe that you have been impacted by Hydra and should likely focus instead on clove (or clove oil) and similar natural anti-parasitics).

Symptoms of being influenced by Hydra include repeated interactions with others that seem to be almost supernatural. Such as seeing the same vehicle etc. each time you peer out of the window, etc. (hive-minds, if you will).

Also, sadly, though unsurprisingly, you should be aware that adaptive AI swarm technology is now in use to enhance these effects, as a form of control, and to test the use of hydra on populations of unsuspecting people (also called redminds or redminders among knowing pharmacists, and is the chief power over communism and socialism (Refer to the red-wave war tactics used by some communist nations in the past).

Popular bands where Hydra and its effects, along with related phenomena are mentioned in song lyrics follow (I am neither recommending nor condemning either of these bands, as I have admittedly listened to them at some point in my life. I am instead only stating that this has been going on for quite some time and is an example of why it is important to be careful of what we listen to and allow our children to listen to) :

Norma Jean - Hive Minds,

Misfits - I turned into a Martian,

U2 - Sunday Bloody Sunday (the band's War album in particular),

30-Seconds to Mars - various (an example song may include the Kill), (I also don't believe it was accidental that Jared Leto was chosen to play the Joker considering the links with Mars / Apollo, and clowns to Mephistopheles (note their album titled This is War). As a quick example of a potential generational curse that may have negatively impacted Jared, Leto is the mother of Apollo and Artemis in Greek Mythology),

At the Drive in - Archarsenal,

Metallica - Sad but True,

Bless the Fall - Black Rose Dying,

Escape the Fate - The Guillotine,

Asking Alexandria - If You Can't Ride Two Horses At Once...Then You Should Get Out Of The Circus,

Metallica - One,

Megadeth - Symphony of Destruction,

Samhain - Archangel,

Bring Me the Horizon - Pray for Plagues and Chelsea Smile (the Suicide Season album cover is also informative), (and various others).

Hydra is associated with war, hornets (hence the term hive), the red horse from the Book of Revelation, the planet Mars / Apollo (the red planet), and the bloods gang, as well as some mafia families and some white nationalist gangs.

Hydra (and the bloods gang) are also associated with Beelzebub, Burchta (this may be an unfair association as she was known to be a pre-Christian guardian of the Alpine French in ancient literature, but my knowledge here is admittedly limited), Krampus, and the number 88 (I will include more on this number, Krampus and Mephostophelis later).

Associated “angel numbers” - 222 (b is the second letter in the alphabet - thus, triple b or triple blood).

Before moving on, I want to quickly insert that I am not placing blame on gang members here, as many were blindly deceived into joining these gangs as children, or otherwise a curse has been passed down to them from their parents. (If you are one of these gang members, or are otherwise suffering from such a curse, there is hope for you as well. Gang outreach and rehabilitation programs have been very effective places to start. I have included a link in Section 5.1 for support).

Upon examining the Misfits band, (for those of you not already familiar this group is a 1980s NY based horror-punk group and are world-famous for their merchandise designs), you will also likely notice that Glenn Danzig, formerly of the band Samhain (the song Archangel by this band directly corresponds to Azazel), later went on to incorporate the elements of 666 into his songs, and rally the horned skull as part of his solo band's logo, titled Danzig.

I cannot say for certain, as I do not wish to incite a lawsuit from a band, or a band member, that I and my peers grew up listening to, but it seems that he likely fell into the trap of deception that many others have; that is, to turn to Azazel, also known as Pan and Hades, and reportedly the first to fall in the rebellion against God (per some sources), as his shield, because all else failed.

This trend is evident by the song “I Turned into a Martian”, and its lyrics, “possession of the mind is a terrible thing”, and “I can’t even recall my name”, followed by a sharp trend toward darker imagery and symbolism in Danzig (apart from the horned skull - the song names “6:66: Satan’s Child”, “Lilin” (referencing Lilith - mother of demons and vampires), and “Belly of the Beast”; these are all very indicative of the deception I am referring to.

This perceived need to turn to Azazel for protection, or a shield, if you will, however, is simply basic extortion. Here, just like with any extortion, the idea is to employ lesser forces of darkness to torment and cause havoc in a person’s life (possession of the mind here causing forgetfulness for example), until they eventually submit to him. Thus, Apollo, (also translated as the destroyer), is none other than Satan himself, (or at least a variant of), sent to destroy and coerce one into submission via extortion.

A classic question imposed by Azazel / Apollo, during this cycle of torture (refer to At the Drive In's song, Pattern Against User as a reference), is why would God allow such suffering?

That answer is simple: the person who is suffering is very likely, no, almost certainly, having their prayers impeded, by Azazel himself and/or his forces, or is having the answer to those prayers blocked from reaching their destination.

Recall that this also occurred when the angel was bringing word to Daniel:

"But the prince of the Persian kingdom resisted me twenty-one days. Then Michael, one of the chief princes, came to help me, because I was detained there with the king of Persia." Dan. 10:13.

(Notice- referring back to Glenn Danzig and the Misfits, this subsection is only conjecture as I do not know Glenn Danzig personally, any member of the Misfits band personally, and this entire subsection could be incorrect on my part in regards to Glenn Danzig and other bands I have mentioned. I am only presenting a pattern that I have identified based upon the elements examined.)

Further, I would like to point out that I am not looking to place blame on Marvel Comics, but the use of Marvel and other contemporary media to help deceive (whether intentional or not) is very commonplace.

For example, I recommend that you look into Agents of Shield concerning Hydra, Leviathan and Shield (Azazel likes to carry the title of Captain America (this harkens back to the Pinnacle or Pentagram) - note that this is because the U.S. is, (or at least, I firmly believe that it was (I am not God and cannot speak on future events with any degree of certainty apart from what is provided in scripture), Azazel's kingdom, with him positioned as its ruler. Alas, I posit that an evaluation of the contents of many Hollywood films would be obvious in reaching this conclusion.

Moreover, he likes to be known as an Archangel, (along with Shemyaza undoubtedly) and in effect they are, but Archangels of the fallen, not the heavenly host (this title belongs to Michael and Gabriel concerning the heavenly host, as well as potentially Uriel and Raphael, among others (this is speculation on my part, aside from what scripture expressly provides).

I want to close this section on Hydra, or Hive (both however are clearly tools or aliases of Mars / Apollo / Azazel, the destroyer, invariably), by stating that I saw that the former Misfits band member, popularly known as Michael Graves, recently converted to Christianity. I was personally very pleased to read about this, along with Dave Mustain's conversion (he was another previously targeted by such deception, Megadeth's lyric "watch him become a god" is evidence for this).

Leviathan. Associated with the sea, the serpent, and is potentially the beast that arises from the sea, (although this may be metaphorical as Hydra is the Greek beast, this could simply be another part of it. I state this due to the presence of many horns and heads described in Revelation).

As far as Leviathan being the serpent, or directly connected with it, I think it worth pointing out that per the Genesis account Satan chose the serpent to send into the garden to tempt Eve. This is important as this shows that Satan controls the serpent (I recommend reading about Hermes / Mercury from mythology here, as well as his son, Pan, as it were).

The following is taken from Biblehub.com but provided by Strong's Exhaustive Concordance :

"leviathan, mourning

From lavah; a wreathed animal, i.e. A serpent (especially the crocodile or some other large sea- monster); figuratively, the constellation of the dragon; also as a symbol of Bab. -- leviathan, mourning."

Like Hydra, this is also, what I believe, is at least what forms part of the dragon (based upon my knowledge, and sources, there are seven houses of the fallen, as it is stated in the Book of Enoch Section I

"and they called it Mount Hermon, because they had sworn 7 and bound themselves by mutual imprecations upon it.", but all identify as dragons, or at least to some extent, with two chiefs over them - Semyaza (listed expressly as the Chief) and Azazel (to whom war and many sins of the world were specifically ascribed), according to Enoch I (and thus, is only conjecture on my part - as I was not present at the time).

Azazel, Shield (pentagram or pinnacle). (see above), although we have already covered him in some detail, I would like to reiterate that the watchers or fallen angels did have sons on the earth with women.

Per Enoch I, they deceived humans into sacrificing to demons as gods and the women who had been deceived by them were made sirens.

"Here shall stand the angels who have connected themselves with women, and their spirits assuming many different forms are defiling mankind and shall lead them astray into sacrificing to demons as gods, (here shall they stand,) till the day of the great judgement in 2 which they shall be judged till they are made an end of. And the women also of the angels who 3 went astray shall become sirens."

Although Enoch had stated that he seen the end of all things, and was clearly deeply shaken by his visions, the section below indicates that not only did a remnant remain on the earth that were neither demons, watchers, nor their offspring, but something else:

"And now, my son, arise and make petition to the Lord of glory, since thou art a believer, that a remnant may remain on the earth, and that He may not destroy the whole 9 earth." This likely refers to the elect mentioned in the Book of Revelation (I personally feel that the great deception will be based around "aliens" and recommend a very healthy skepticism there. But, there are undoubtedly other powers and rulers who have not rebelled or abandoned their original heavenly estate. The Bible states that God returns with thousands of His holy ones).

Mephistopheles. This is a rather new name for Satan (for those who may not be aware Satan means adversary or accuser - case bringer), not appearing until only a few centuries ago. However, based upon some reading, he is the chief emissary to Lucifer, (although sometimes Mephistopheles may be described as the devil himself or Semyaza).

He is a trickster spirit, associated with the crossroads, mirror magic, the Joker (clowns), as well as contracts. He is also directly correlated to Krampus (due to the Germanic element I presume), and the number 88. Thus, he is a chief power behind many, if not all white supremist groups and gangs and the neo-nazi movement (Note that Goethe's Faust was published in 1808 (famous for the Faustian bargain for those unaware)).

The name Henry is one he favors, which means ruler, and the H is the 8th letter of the alphabet. He also likes to go by M Leon (M-leon, (leon meaning lion), or sometimes even the lion king in my personal experience), as part of his deception).

"[Chapter 88] 1 And I saw one of those four who had come forth first, and he seized that first star which had fallen from the heaven, and bound it hand and foot and cast it into an abyss: now that abyss was 2 narrow and deep, and horrible and dark. And one of them drew a sword, and gave it to those elephants and camels and asses: then they began to smite each other, and the whole earth quaked 3 because of them. And as I was beholding in the vision, lo, one of those four who had come forth stoned (them) from heaven, and gathered and took all the great stars whose privy members were like those of horses, and bound them all hand and foot, and cast them in an abyss of the earth." Enoch I.

I would like to quickly insert here that it could be argued that elephants and asses may relate directly to political parties, (again, symbolism and colors are important in essentially everything). I can say with certainty that political parties do indeed have powers and rulers assigned over them, just as gangs and nations do (the princes of Greece and Persia are Biblical examples of this). Yet, I will not elaborate on this further, however, as I am an independent and do not ascribe to politics nor do I desire to engage in the affairs of political parties.

It has been my personal experience that Mephistopheles likes to deceive the unsuspecting into believing he is the Archangel Michael (a play on the M in this much more recent name, inevitably). He also uses popular shows such as Twin Peaks (the M outline), and related symbolism, to further this deception.

The railroad is of particular interest to him, likely due to it being correlated with the crossroads. Thus, his relation to hell hounds are also to be noted.

Hell Hounds. In Japan, hell hounds are directly linked to the Tanuki (compare to the Biblical unclean Chomet described in Lev 11:30).

The following excerpt on Tanuki is from illinois.edu

"In Japanese folklore, there are certain animals that possess supernatural or spiritual powers that are believed to influence the affairs of humans. These creatures are considered to be a type of yōkai (referred to in an earlier Kokoro Insights) called Henge, or shapeshifters. Among these animals, the most famous are the trickster animal spirits of the Kitsune (fox) and the Tanuki (Japanese raccoon dog). According to Japanese legends, these are the only two animals that naturally occur with magical powers. In many legends, the Tanuki and the Kitsune change shape into a human to commit mischievous acts against humans simply because they enjoy tricking humans in any way they can. While the Kitsune is associated with sharper intelligence and either a dignified or malicious intent behind its usual trickery, especially because of its association with the Shinto god Inari, Tanuki are often described as unclever and humorous in its trickery. In Shinto legends, the foxes serve as sorts of messengers or familiars of the God Inari, who is the god of rice said to protect the rice harvest and a god said to watch over the prosperity of farmers and merchants. Because the fox is said to have supernatural powers, the fox is also said to hold the ability to either ward off or allow demonic and evil influences on Inari and thus on the harvest of rice (rice also being associated with fertility in Japan)."

Note that in Leviticus, Chameleons can shapeshift (compare these to Djinn, the ancient pre-islamic shapeshifting deities and the Celtic Puca):

"The only appearance of (Chomet) חֹמֶט occurs in Leviticus 11:30, where it is listed among the "creeping things" whose carcasses render the Israelites ceremonially unclean. The Berean Standard Bible reads: "the gecko, the monitor lizard, the common lizard, the sand lizard, and the chameleon." In the larger context of Leviticus 11, these animals are grouped with eight small land-creatures (Leviticus 11:29–30) that stand apart from the more familiar clean–unclean distinctions of livestock, fish, birds, and insects. Their inclusion underscores the comprehensive reach of the holiness code—nothing that crawls upon the earth is exempt from God's scrutiny (Leviticus 11:44–45)."

Associated symbolism with both Tanuki and Chomet include a winking face or one eye. (The latter may be associated with some secret societies as well, but I am not an expert in this field and will suggest further reading here.)

Common deception and initiation involved with these entities, include the stripping away of all that made the person who they were, (I am not referring to casting off sinful behaviors here), denying oneself emotion (apart from anger, fear and hatred), shapeshifting (unzipping or shedding the skin (I want to insert a quick nod to the band ZAO here and their lyrics “shed my skin” as I suspect (though am not certain), that this same process occurred with their bandmembers).

Related deception includes influencing people to make them believe that they are demons or demon seeds (note again here that generational curses do exist), star seeds, placed in the wrong body (trans-gender or giving way to these thoughts), are other types of extra terrestrials, and related phenomena. In short, losing hope seems to be a primary goal here, as an “answer” is then discreetly presented to a person, which is, almost always, false, and absolutely not to be trusted, by any means (the answers truly can be found within the Bible and building a personal relationship with God and Jesus - but don’t just take my word for it, He does speak through dreams and visions very often).

Further, again, AI and other technology are being used and employed to experiment on people that are being influenced by these entities by some elites, shadow organizations, and even some governments who have pacts in place with these entities, (or, as to the elites, their ancestors had pacts in place and these curses fell to them along with their being selected / used as a vessel, as I have previously discussed).

Due to the Djinn, Puca and / or Tanuki’s ability to shapeshift and affect animals, it is a wise decision to NEVER pick up any stray animal you come across. It may even prove a good decision to house any animals classified as unclean by the Bible outside, or rehome them altogether, due to their ability to be influenced by various forces of darkness.

I want to quickly insert that I'm not stating that animals are evil here, only that spiritual warfare is very real and it is constantly occurring, whether we are cognizant of it or not. Thus, it is up to us to take every step to remove and prevent any openings.

As to house pets, I suggest going ahead and looking for trends. If you notice a pattern where each time you enter into the kitchen and your pet starts eating or drinking, or seems to watch you and eat or drink when you do, this is a very good indicator that your pet is being used as a vessel and needs to be placed outside the home, or rehomed, as soon as possible.

In short, a safe bet is that if it can be used against you, it very likely will be.

"As it was in the days of Noah, so it will be at the coming of the Son of Man."
Matthew 24:37

Djinn. Taken from wiu.libguides.com :

"Rooted in pre-Islamic Arabian legend, djinn—also written jinn or genies—are supernatural beings elaborated upon by Islamic religion, literature, and popular culture. According to Islamic tradition, djinn are free-willed entities made from smokeless fire separate from angels and mankind. Some djinn are regarded as good or neutral; others are considered naughty or even openly antagonistic to people, affecting events, ideas, and fates in many different ways. From religious scriptures to poetry, stories, and even modern media, the idea of djinn has spread widely, creating a rich topic for academic study.

Reflecting regional customs, religious beliefs, and centuries of narrative, the pantheon of djinn is enormous and diverse. The Quran describes djinn as a distinct community with societies, religions, and moral decisions. Among the most noteworthy djinn mentioned in Islamic literature are well-known individuals like Iblis, who refused to bow to Adam and became a shayṭān (demon) as well as the Queen of Sheba's advisor. Islamic legend goes farther into detail, categorizing djinn as marid (rebellious), ifrit (strong and usually bad), and shayḥn (devilish). Furthermore, the Thousand and One Nights and other literary legacies have increased the character and stories of djinn, sometimes erasing the distinctions between myth, folklore, and religion."

Djinn, given their usual depiction as being blue skinned, are often associated with the crips gang (a not so hidden hint is the drink gin and juice, the juice is often blue calypso). Venus, Asherah and at least, by some extension, Lucifer (the morning star), may all be linked to this gang also as the power behind it (once more, I am certain that many involved in this gang, like the others, are not aware of much of this information). Associated crip “angel numbers” are 333 (for CCC).

By comparison, Saturn (Chronus - another name for Satan - I suggest reading about the rebellious Titans), is likely the power at work behind the Gangster Disciples gang (note the star of David can also pertain to Egyptian deities (due to the pyramids) and some sets may have one or more of these powers behind them.

It is worth stating here that cities are also governed by certain powers and authorities, and thus all of this can vary inevitably. Much like with secret societies, many of the members do not realize what they are subscribing to (even many of the ranking members included). Associated "angel numbers" with the Gangster Disciples gang are 74 (for GD).

Puca. The reading below is provided by wildernessireland.com :

"Púca are shape-shifting troublemakers. Legends say that the púca can change into horses, goats, cats, donkeys, bulls, dogs, foxes, wolves, and hares, though always with jet-black fur. Horses bearing sleek coats, wild manes and flaming eyes are the most common animal shape of these mischievous fairies. When in human form, these fairies still bear animalistic characteristics.

Though stories about the púca are vague and varied, one common similarity is the púca's love of mischief. Mischief can take many forms, but one favourite with the púca seems to be taking their preferred animal form of a great black horse and enticing the unwitting rider on its back for a wild and terrible horseback ride through the night. Usually, this person has been on the drink, and even if they haven't, the púca bewitches them, leaving them with a bad feeling and hazy recollections of a night poorly spent. As you can imagine, that would frighten anyone – though little actual harm is done.

Sometimes the púca can serve as a protective entity, helping farmers with the crops, offering presents, or intervening ahead of a terrible accident to prevent harm, though stories of kindly púca are much overshadowed by those of mischief, bad luck, or even doom."

Ashteroth - Also commonly called Asherah or Ishtar.

I included this section on Ashteroth due to her often being depicted in various forms and the deception that accompanies.

Ashteroth is highly linked to the Biblical "Queen of Heaven", the moon, as well as Baal.

Strong's Exhaustive Concordance (no. 6253) details her as follows:

"Ashtoreth

Probably for ashtrah; Ashtoreth, the Phoenician goddess of love (and increase) -- Ashtoreth."

Due to Baal being the chief Phoenician deity, and Ashtoreth being his consort, it is easy to make the correlation between the two.

Jonathan Cahn's the Return of the Gods has an excellent section on her, Baal, and their influence on the current state of our nation.

IV. Healing

This may be the hardest section to write and the most difficult to address within ourselves, not only because healing might look different to everyone, but also because it can take many steps, particularly after a long season of dealing with the types of entities I have described above.

Constant spiritual warfare, and / or torture, tends to do one thing more than any other: remove love from the heart, which is the underlying theme of the gospel itself. This is of course at the core of what these entities do, in order to inspire murder, malice and related feelings and ideas.

Steps to begin healing -

I. First, break any curses as best you can, then step out of fear - This will remove at least some of the bindings hostile entities are using to drain the body of energy. This may look different to different people depending upon the circumstances, but this could simply be going to the store. If paranoia takes over, and you notice gang stalking, for example, keep going and be confident that no-one can be harmed unless God allows it. Even if they were, compared to the constant prison that an ongoing state of fear and panic places one in, death might even be a better alternative, so long as that person is in the right place spiritually. Thus, do not be a slave to fear.

II. Second, find a community - This can even be online, and, if nothing else, may be simply via prayer (we are never truly alone whether we realize this or not). But, when searching for others who have shared similar experiences, always remember to question everything and everyone. Warfare means war and it is very real.

III. Third, look for love within yourself. This may look like simply exercising at first and taking small steps toward trying to love yourself. Then, after a little time, look inside and try to do good things for others. Doing good deeds, no matter how small, and accomplishing tasks, helps to realign ourselves with whatever love remains within us. Then, it helps to grow that love over time.

IV. Enjoy nature. This may seem too simple, but just being outside does good for the soul.

V. Avoiding Deception and Identifying a Safe Church / Community

Avoiding deception, like with healing, will also look a little different to each person, especially as more technology continues to be produced. However, following the Rules to Live By and removing as well as avoiding bringing unclean animals into your dwelling (I suggest getting familiar with the Leviticus code as it is important, particularly now due to the current circumstances - and no, I am not saying Christians are bound by the law by this statement) will provide you with some solid footing.

Avoiding AI and other new technology, such as brain implants, is a great idea, (the latter likely, or at least hopefully, should be intuitive).

Also, be mindful of how these technologies are being used (techno-paganism has been around since the 2000s or even earlier, I suggest reading more on this topic in order to better understand it.

Also consider that if technology was being utilized so many years prior to carry out nefarious purposes, then we can only speculate on the possibilities it has now with quantum computers). For example, many may not realize this, but simply by reading a document written by AI and with enchantments placed upon it can influence the reader in real time. It is imperative to always be cautious of what you read via electronic media.

Moreover, again, concerning new technology and its potential hazards, be wary of the clothing you purchase as transmitters may be inserted into them (especially into hats and beanies) and used to control thought patterns. Sadly, this has been a possibility for some time now and is being carried out on various populations globally, but in some nations more than others.

Alas, I suggest growing your own food, herbs for medicines, and avoiding addictive substances (unless you grow it yourself, such as tobacco, or growing your own grapes to make your own wine, etc.).

This is again because of the pacts (that may - we can't be certain here) be in place with some major companies and their owners and various entities.

Recall that generational curses are undoubtedly real, but it is my hope that as someone who has been under such curses (trust that there have been multiple) and worked hard to remove them, more company owners who may have pacts in place might follow that example.

Finding a safe church or community will require careful attention to detail. Make sure to break all curses that you can first to prevent anyone else in the church from potentially being targeted and subsequently injured, along with your own sense of mental and emotional wellbeing.

Nothing says "I give up on Christianity" like having your church infiltrated by hostile forces (they will do this if they think it will work. Please always remember that enemy entities have been doing what they do for eons and are highly skilled at it - this is an understatement. Respect should be shown by remaining vigilant, staying connected to God and remaining sober at all times if possible).

Things to look for in finding a safe church to attend include:

a. Clothing with symbols that may indicate a church leader or member engages in an activity that could provide an opening.
b. Unnecessary bowing down (look for dropping items around a certain person(s) - one translation of Chomet (Chaldee) is “to bow down”.
c. The systemic removal of all that makes a person (church member here) who they are (again I’m not referring to sinful behaviors here), followed by the strategic implementation of “making someone in Christ’s image”.

d. Church leaders or members who work in AI or the tech industry (I'm not condemning all of the people working in the technology industry here, only that additional attention should be given).
e. People walking into the church building or place of worship and showing scars on their hands or other "miracles". Jesus is indeed alive, but at the right hand of the father. It is written that many in the latter days would come claiming to be Christ but to not be deceived. Thus, why would Jesus make specific randomized appearances and contribute directly to this deception? Quite simply, He wouldn't.
f. An overly political pastor may also be a warning sign due to the powers behind political parties.

g. The feeling of a trance-like state when entering a church building or an otherwise uneasy feeling in your heart.
(My goal here is not to cause readers to avoid church, it is actually quite the opposite in truth, but being wary of what is happening around you is paramount in order to avoid deception. Should any of these things be picked up on, it is a good idea to avoid church potlucks or at the very least incorporate protection (which I have laid out in this book) before sharing a meal. This is because some church leaders, just like church members, can and do give way to seducing spirits. The primary difference is the church leaders are targeted even more so, for obvious reasons).

A final word of advice is that it is okay to hate the evil deeds malicious forces may cause or contribute to, but do not slander the forces themselves; they have real power and can cause real harm. Similarly, do not fear them, as they can feed on the energy (depending on the entity in question - demons typically like to do this, however). Exorcising them via prayer is very different from slander.

A balance is needed here - Rest in the truth that if God allows something to happen to you, then it will, if He doesn't, then it won't. However, it is ultimately up to us to cleanse, close and prevent any openings from occurring by remaining vigilant. This takes work, but it really is that simple.

V.I Recommended Reading Links and Contacts

The following article on Techno-paganism is taken from cremit.it and dates from 2005. I have included this to demonstrate how advanced the capabilities of technopaganism may be now if this was on the radar more than 20 years ago:

“The ubiquity and mediation of digital technologies in the cultural scenario have produced changes in the way of inhabiting the contemporary panorama, not only by disrupting and reformulating communicative processes and human interactions but by rethinking how people relate with the digital universe and its complex dynamics. In this scenario, the dialogues between religious imaginaries and the digital medium have been intensifying. Such intersections allow making visible the impact of virtual networks in the sphere of the sacred (Wertheim 1999), the numinous and the magical, as well as the potentialities of meaning that these worlds acquire when they come into contact, since “the two are now converging on one another.” (Hoover 2012: 30). In this sense, the magical and cosmological component that seemed to have disappeared during modernity has been re-proposed within one of the greatest technological innovations of humanity: the digital machine (Aupers 2009).

The discourses about the links of digital technology with the spiritual contexts can however be very versatile, affecting how beliefs are perceived by opening the possibilities for emerging nontraditional beliefs and religious systems. That is to say, the internet allowing new forms of expression through the own characteristic of digital spaces – for example, its fluid nature – providing new ways to experience spirituality. One of those emerging phenomena is what is known as Technopaganism (TP), a term that became very popular during the ’90s, especially in the Californian cyberculture, bringing together contemporary paganism, shamanism, popular culture, and science fiction. In its beginning, Technopaganism aimed to consciously ritualize cyberspace (Campbell 2005), while considering the “technological surroundings as an intelligent, autonomous force” (Aupers 2002: 199).

Technopaganism never had a single definition since its limits are blurred. However it is possible to recognize two different paths of this spiritual phenomenon: The first one belongs to neopagans migrating their practices online, where the eclectic and complex contemporary pagan cosmology found a perfect scenario to settle and expand by using digital artifacts to rewrite its practices. The second belongs to techno-enthusiasts who saw a parallelism between magical practices and cyberspace, allowing other dimensions of reality to take place. The programmer Mark Pesce[1] was one of the greatest exponents of this second scenario involving esoteric conceptions with computers. On that matter, when thinking about technopaganism as a whole, technology and spirituality are related in such a way that they work as an inseparable unity, keeping “one foot in the emerging technosphere and one foot in the wild and woolly world of Paganism” (Davis 1995).

Even if the term became obsolete after the first decade of the ’00s many contemporary practices include directly or implicitly a ‘technopagan aura’, considering how the halo of mysticism surrounding digital technologies seemed to be reemerging within the posthuman postulates and the advances in artificial intelligence, robotics, and immersive extended realities. Nowadays, people that recognize themselves as technopagans inhabit all kinds of virtual spaces to develop their beliefs and spiritual practices. One of those territories is represented by virtual communities and video games, “the medium that best epitomizes the combination of technology and spiritualist narratives” (Tanaka 2015). However, what better describes the current technopagan condition is how it allows to reconstruct or simply reinvent aspects of people’s spiritual life through an animistic[2] ontology (Descola 2005) in regards to other beings, entities, and forces, including machines and technological devices (Cowan 2005: xi). For a technopagan view, therefore, the online context is an organic environment where individuals can develop valid spiritual experiences, together with virtual entities – as avatars – and algorithmic processes.

[1] The first written record of TP is an interview to Mark Pesce, published by Wired magazine in 1995, where he explains how digital technologies are not only a form of magic but a door to access other planes of connection and a place to meet the divine. As stated by Pesce: "I think computers can be as sacred as we are, because they can embody our communication with each other and with the entities – the divine parts of ourselves – that we invoke in that space" (Davis 1995).

[2] According to Phillipe Descola, animism can be understood as an ontology characterized by 'a continuity of souls and a discontinuity of bodies' between humans and nonhumans (2014: 275). Each animistic being possess a soul or vital life force. The conception of animism in anthropology was introduced by Edward Tylor, for whom according to Tylor, animism is a form of religion in which the spirits and souls of humans and other beings or entities are necessary for life, therefore the soul is not only a vital force to specific beings but is pervasive throughout the cosmos and imbued in all beings (1977 [1871]).”

VI. Exorcisms

Given that a historic rise in exorcisms has been reported among many churches, I thought it a sound idea to include an exorcism prayer that has been proven effective over time.

The following prayer is from St. Basil the Great and is provided courtesy of the Orthodox church, but I also recommend looking into St. Benedict's prayers as well.

“Prayer of interdiction of St. Basil the Great that is read by a priest over one suffering from demons

O God of gods and Lord of lords, Creator of the fiery ranks, and Fashioner of the fleshless powers, the Artisan of heavenly things and those under the heavens, Whom no man has seen, nor is able to see, Whom all creation fears: Into the dark depths of Hell You hurled the commander who had become proud, and who, because of his disobedient service, was cast down from the height to earth, as well as the angels that fell away with him, all having become evil demons.

Grant that this my exorcism being performed in Your awesome name, be terrible to the Master of evil and to all his minions who had fallen with him from the height of brightness. Drive him into banishment, commanding him to depart hence, so that no harm might be worked against Your sealed Image.

And, as You have commanded, let those who are sealed receive the strength to tread upon serpents and scorpions, and upon all power of the Enemy. For manifested, hymned, and glorified with fear, by everything that has breath is Your most holy Name: of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit, now and ever and into ages of ages. Amen."

I recommend incorporating a white candle that has been anointed with oil as well as frankincense for this rite. Reading words from scripture that Jesus spoke personally during an exorcism rite is also effective. Many examples of actual orthodox* exorcisms can be found online to provide more information.

VII. Conclusion

In this work we have covered a multitude of topics. I have admittedly rushed it due to feeling as though the sooner it is published and made available, the sooner it might make a difference to someone who needs it.

The topics herein have ranged from rules to protect yourself from curses, manipulation and deception, identifying curses and their likely place(s) of origin, removing those curses, sections on angels, fallen angels, demons and related entities, as well as incense making and herbal applications for cleansing.

Again, it has been my hope and it is the goal of this book to help someone who may be struggling, as I and others have. I can say from my own experience, while struggling, I needed someone, but could not trust them due to obvious reasons (or otherwise did not wish to bring calamity on other persons due to the curses I was under and the entities that were plaguing me).

I may eventually expand upon this work, but for now, I feel that all of the essential bases have been adequately covered, according to what I felt compelled to write.

I will close with a poem by Countee Cullen (1903 - 1946), titled Simon the Cyrenian Speaks

“He never spoke a word to me,
And yet He called my name;
He never gave a sign to me,
And yet I knew and came.

At first I said, "I will not bear
His cross upon my back;
He only seeks to place it there Because my skin is black."

But He was dying for a dream,
And He was very meek,

And in His eyes there shone a gleam Men journey far to seek.

It was Himself my pity bought;
I did for Christ alone
What all of Rome could not have wrought
With bruise of lash or stone."

Beloved, do not believe every spirit, but test the spirits to see whether they are from God, for many false prophets have gone out into the world. By this you know the Spirit of God: every spirit that confesses that Jesus Christ has come in the flesh is from God, and every spirit that does not confess Jesus (is the Messiah and has come in the flesh) is not from God. This is the spirit of the antichrist, which you heard was coming and now is in the world already.

CURSES, POWERS & CLEANSING

Have you ever felt like you were living under a curse? Did your ancestors belong to secret societies, or engage in practicing dark arts? Or, could there be a generational curse affecting you and your loved ones in real time?

This book instructs the reader on some of the primary rulers and powers at work behind the scenes all around us, identifying the sources of curses, and teaches how to remove them, leading to a better quality of life.

As part of removing curses, instructions on incense making, purification and using common herbs are included.
